INTRODUCTION

Volume 37C, the third and final volume of Research in the History of Economic Thought and Methodology to be published in 2019 features a symposium on the work of Robert Heilbroner on the occasion of his centenary. Former students and/or colleagues Luca Fiorito, Harald Hagemann, Edward Nell, and Steven Pressman share their reflections on the contributions of the influential New School economist and historian of economic thought, who passed away in 2005.

The volume also features a new essay by Samuel Hollander on “Karl Marx’s Evolutionary Credentials and the Marx–Mill Intellectual Relationship,” as well as Fiorito’s “Social Stratification, Hereditarianism, and Eugenics. A Harvard Tale,” an examination of the role that eugenicist thinking continued to play among Harvard economists well into the interwar period.

Finally, the current volume includes a new archival discovery from Maxime Desmarais-Tremblay and Marianne Johnson, namely Richard Musgrave’s reflections on Alvin Hansen and John Williams’ Fiscal Policy Seminar at Harvard, originally prepared for the 50th anniversary of the Seminar in 1988.
