

INDEX

- Activism, 141–143
- Activists, 141–143
- Adversary activism, 140–141
- Aftercare phase, 18, 24–25
- Age discrimination, 101
- Asociación de Directivos de Comunicación (DIR-COM), 66–67
- Associação Brasileira de Comunicação empresarial (ABERJE), 66–67
- Associação Portuguesa de Comunicação de Empresa (APCE), 66–67
- Associations codes, 72–74
- Awareness phase, 17, 23

- Baby Boomers, 106
- Black Lives Matter movement, 82
- Business-related D&I objectives, 91

- Career controlling power, 196
- Challenges of Change in Unpredictable Times*, 2
- Charta der Vielfalt (Diversity Charter), 95
- Chartered Institute of Public Relations (CIPR), 64–67, 181–182
- #ChooseToChallenge movement, 82
- Classic lobbying, 212
- Code of Athens, 64
- Code of Ethics, 64
- Communication
 - climate, 85–86
 - discrepancies, 48–49
 - managers, 108
 - researchers, 212
 - skills, 3, 49
 - tasks, 113
 - of women as political leaders, 50–51
- Communication Accommodation Theory (CAT), 107–108
- Communicative Predicament of Ageing (CPA), 107–108
- Communicators, 30–31, 39
- Consejo Profesional de Relaciones Públicas (CPRPA), 66–67
- Conservation, 68
- ‘Content analysis of universities’ digital communication, 34–35
- Corporate comportment, 142
- Corporate social responsibility (CSR), 145
- COVID-19
 - crisis, 3, 52
 - pandemic, 1, 3, 48, 50, 52
- Credibility, 167
- Crisis, 33
- Crisis communication, 48
 - data analysis, 53–54
 - data collection, 52–53
 - findings, 54–57
 - limitations and suggestions for future research, 58
 - literature review, 49–51
 - research framework, 52–54
 - theoretical background, 48–49
- Criticism, 142
- Croatian universities, 32–33
 - perception of identity, 37–38
- Customization, 112–113

- Delayed reciprocity, 49, 54
- Demographic change, 101
- Descriptive statistics, 130
- Dialogical communication, 85–86

- Digital communication (see also Crisis communication), 33, 213–214
- Digital feedback tool drivers and barriers, 19–20
 heat transition, 20–22
 literature review, 11–12
 methodology, 13–16
 recommendations, 25–27 research design, 14–16 research goal and questions, 13–14 resident questions, motivations and barriers, 16–20
 SMM, 11–13
- Digital instruments, 212–213
- Digital lobbying changing lobbying process in digital age, 212
 characterizing, 220–223
 findings, 217–223
 lobbying actors in digital setting, 212–214
 methodology, 214–217
- Digital technology, 1, 10
- Dissemination of spokesperson stigma, 172–174
- Diversity
 management, 82–84
 in organisations, 83–84
- Diversity and Inclusion programs (D&I programs), 3, 82
 management, 83
 managers, 86–87
 studies on, 84
- E-marketing tools, 31–32
- Education, 31–32
- Effective internal communication, 100
- Employee activism, 4, 140
 badmouthing, 150–151
 as communication phenomenon, 146–151 implications, 151–154 importance, 140–141
 internal–external activism continuum, 143–144 key triggering factors, 144–146
- Employee activists, 140, 143–144 activities and campaigns, 144 initiatives, 140–141
- Employee engagement (EE), 124, 130 data collection and participants, 128–129 key drivers, 1245
 limitations and future studies, 134 measures, 129
 method, 128–129
 as outcome of social exchange, 125–126
 results, 130–131
 theoretical overview, 124–127
- Employees, 139–140
 communication, 146–147
 outcomes, 127
 voice, 147
- Energy transition, 9
- Engagement, 125–126
- Entrepreneurial university, 31
- Environmental activists, 143–144
- Ethical universalism, 75
- Ethics, 3, 62
 of justice, 49
- Ethics codes, 62
 presence of values in, 69–71
- Ethics of care, 48–49
 in communication, 51
- European Public Relations Education and Research Association (EUPRERA), 1 community, 2
 theme, 1
- Everyday life behaviours, 10
- Excellence Theory, 108
- Execution phase, 18, 24
- Expert consulting, 85
- Expressive dimension, 169–170
- F.A.C.T.S. awareness campaign, 56
- Facebook, 35, 40
- Federal Council and Regional Councils of Public Relations

- Professionals in Brazil (CONFERP), 64
- Feedback intervention tool, 11
- Feminism, 3
- Financial barriers, 20
- Finnish media, 201
- Finnish PR consultants, 5, 194–195, 197, 199
- Focus group, 216
- Fridays For Future (FFF), 212
- Functional dimension, 169
- Future of lobbying, 224

- Gamification, 2–3
- Generation-specific segmentation in strategic internal communication, 102, 104, 107–108
 - definitions and key elements, 102–103
 - intergenerational and intercultural communication, 107–108
 - segmentation of internal stakeholders, 103–104
 - theoretical analysis and synthesis of segmentation criteria, 105–106
- Generations X, 106
- Generations Y, 106
- Global Alliance
 - code, 72–73
 - for Public Relations and Communication Management, 63, 66–67
- Goffman, E., 165–167
- Google, 139–140
- Governments, 31, 50
- Gratitude, honesty and wishing best for others, 56–57
- Grounded theory approach, 214, 217

- Habitual behaviour, 10
- Heat transition, 11, 20, 22
 - bridges, 21–22
 - gaps, 21
 - outcomes, 22
 - situation/reason, 20–21
- Hedonism, 68
- Higher Education Institutions (HEI), 31–32
- Human Element in Employee Communication, The*, 3

- Identity, 220–223
- Inclusive work
 - climate, 84
 - environment, 83
- Intercultural communication, 107–108
- Intergenerational communication, 107–108
- Intergenerational dialogue, 101
- Internal communication (see also Strategic communication), 82–84, 87, 100
 - common internal D&I communication measures, 89–90
 - consulting, 85
 - department, 3
 - findings, 88–92
 - literature review, 83–87
 - methodology, 87–88
 - and relationship with employee outcomes, 126–127
- Internal communication satisfaction (ICS), 126–127, 130
- Internal corporate communication, 84–85
 - in D&I management, 88–89
 - as means to achieve D&I objectives, 90–92
- Internal line management communication, 84–85
- Internal project peer communication, 84–85
- Internal team peer communication, 84–85
- Internal–external activism continuum, 143–144
- International Association of Business Communicators (IABC), 31–32, 64–65

- International Communications Consultancy Organisation (ICCO), 64–65
- International Public Relations Association (IPRA), 64
- International Standard Industry Classification (ISIC), 185
- Internet, 212–213
- Intervention, 2–3
- Journalists, 164
in lobbying, 201–202
- Kappa coefficient, 68–69
- Leadership characteristics, 50–51
skills, 48
- LGBTIQ community, 91
- LinkedIn, 40
- Lobbying (Scotland) Act 2016, 180, 189
- Lobbying, 4, 194–195 actors in digital setting, 212–214
changing lobbying process in digital age, 212
consultants in Finland, 198–199
in context of public relations practice, 180–181
findings, 183–189
gender, 183
measurement, 182
method, 182
methodology, 197–198
news media and political communication, 195–197 numbers of staff, 187
political party activity, 184–185 population and participants, 182 qualifications, 183
results, 198–204
sampling, 182
significance of media in, 199–200 staffing resource, 185–187 transparency legislation, 188–189 types and sectors of organisations, 185
- Lobbyists, 5, 222–223 benefits of political background, 204 techniques and regulation, 187–188 typology and behaviour, 181–182
- Mann Whitney U-test, 174
- MAXQDA software, 87–88
- Media, 195
attention, 196 lobbyism, 194
relations, 164, 200 reports, 9–10
significance in lobbying, 199–200
- Mediation analysis, 130–131
- Members of the Scottish Parliament (MSPs), 180
- Microblogging sites, 212–213
- Moral outrage, 142
- Negative word-of-mouth (NWOM), 150
- Neighbourhood-oriented ‘unburdening approach’, 19
- News media, 195, 197, 200–201 conflicts with, 203–204 efficiency, 202–203
in lobbying, 201–202
- Nordic media systems, 196–197
- Norwegian PR agencies, 196–197
- Openness to change, 68
- Optimal Distinctiveness Theory, 84
- Organisational communication, 3, 82–83
- Organisational dissent, 147–148
- Organisational pro-diversity climate, 83–84
- Organisational resources, 196
- Organisational support, 125
- Orientation and choice phase, 18, 23–24

- Outside lobbying, 196
- Perceived organisational support (POS), 130
- Perceived stigma effects on job satisfaction, 174
- Personal promotion, 68
- Planned communication, 31
- Political communication, 50, 194–195, 197
- Political decision making, 194–195
- Political decision-makers, 195
- Political institutions, 212–213
- Political leadership, 48–49
- Political mobilization, 212–213
- Political power in Finland, 194–195
- Polyphonic communication approach, 101
- Power-sharing, 140
- Principled dissent, 147–148
- Private universities, 37–38
- Pro-diversity climate, 83–84
- Process consulting, 85
- Profession, 62
 - method, 66–69
 - procedure and instruments, 67–69
 - results, 69–74
 - sample, 66–67
 - theoretical framework, 63–66
- Professional associations, 62
- Professional public relations associations, 63
 - bodies, 62
- Psychological contract, 125
- Psychological contract fulfilment (PCF), 130
- Public affairs (PA), 4, 212–213
 - in context of public relations practice, 180–181
 - numbers of staff, 187
- Public relations (PR), 30, 164, 212–213
 - associations, 62–63
 - and communication experts, 40
 - consultants, 194, 201
 - ethics, 62
 - function, 31–32
 - personnel, 41
 - workers, 30–31
- Public Relations and Communications Association (PRCA), 181–182
- Public Relations Society of America (PRSA), 64, 66–67
- Public universities, 34–35
- Qualitative method, 197
- Regulation, 181–182
- Relationality, 49, 56
- Relationships, 68
- Reserved powers, 180
- ‘Residents’ journey, 12
- Scale reliability, 130
- Schwartz’s theory of basic human values, 62–63, 65, 67
- Scotland, 55, 180
- Scottish lobbyists, 5, 182
- Scottish National Party, 184–185
- Scottish Parliament, 180
- Segmentation of internal stakeholders, 103–104
- Self-monitoring, 10
- Sense of belonging, 84–85
- Sense of responsibility, 49, 55–56
- Sense-making method (SMM), 11–13
- Situational Theory of Problem Solving, 148
- Slacktivism, 146
- Smart energy meters, 2–3, 10–11
- Social change, 49, 54–55
- Social comparison, 19
- Social dimension, 169
- Social exchange quality indicators, 124–125
 - employee engagement as outcome of social exchange, 125–126
 - internal communication and relationship with employee outcomes, 126–127
 - organisational support, 125

- psychological contract, 125
- Social issues, 144–145
- Social media (see also News media), 146, 212–213
 - change through, 217–220
- Social network communication, 35
- Social networking, 212–213
- State University, 38, 40
- Statement on COVID-19 Communication*, 2
- Stigma, 4
 - concept, 164–165
 - of Goffman, 165–167
- Stigma ‘spokesperson’, 165–171
 - empirical findings on attitudes towards, 168–170
 - methodology, 171–172
 - results, 172–174
 - as stigmatisable group, 167–168
- Stigmatisation, 164–166
 - effects, 170–171
- Strategic communication, 30–31, 84–85, 100–101, 168, 212–213
 - findings, 34–40
 - methodology, 32–33
 - staff’s activities, 38
 - theoretical framework, 31–32
- Strategic communicators, acting as, 148–149
- Strategic internal communication, 100
 - findings, 109–114
 - generation-specific segmentation in strategic internal communication, 102–108
 - method and research design, 108–109
- Survey, 128–129
- Sustainability, 11–12
- Swedish PR agencies, 196–197
- Temporal duality, 1
- Theory of basic human values (see Schwartz’s theory of basic human values)
- Transcendence, 68
- Transparency, 220–223
- Transparent lobbying, 219
- Triangular qualitative analysis, 5
- Triple Helix University concept, 31
- Two-way communication, 85–86
- Universities, 30–32
 - interviews with university representatives, 35–40
- UWES, 129
- Values, 67–68
- VERN University, 34–35